Course Information: Seated Acupressure Massage (sometimes known as Onsite or chair massage), is a therapy that can be used both in the salon but much more importantly it has pride of place in the workplace!

Traditionally, the basic sequence that is taught today can last a minimum of 20 minutes, which makes Seated Massage the ideal modality for the busy workplace environment where employees benefit from this quick, dynamic de-stressing therapy and can return to their desks buzzing with energy. Tense, aching muscles are an all too common side-effect of a hectic and stressful workplace. A soothing, relaxing massage sounds like just the thing to smooth away those pent-up tensions.

Yet for most people in busy offices and other workplaces, a conventional, full body massage is too time-consuming, impractical and expensive as a regular stress-busting therapy.

It is unclear when or where it actually originated from, no firm records exist but today, it's used worldwide. Its basis is acupressure and the one with most information and dates is a Japanese style of massage using the same pressure points as in acupuncture which has been practiced as a healing art for at least 5,000 years. It is the third most popular method for treating pain and illness in the world. This complete health system has been documented for use in treating over 3000 conditions. When the vital energies are able to flow through the meridians in a balanced and even way the result is good health. When you experience pain or illness it is an indication that there is a block or leak in the energy flow within your body.
